

AP Language and Composition Following a Columnist Project

Some of the most prominent practitioners of stylish written rhetoric in our culture are newspaper columnists. Sometimes they are called pundits – that is, sources of opinion, or critics. On the following pages you will find a list of well-known newspaper columnists. Select one and complete the tasks below. Please start each assignment on a new page.

TASK 1 – Brief Biography.

Write a brief (100-200 word) biography of the columnist’s journalism career. Be sure to include their primary political leanings, any topics they focus on and events from their personal life that may impact their writing. Properly cite three source(s) at the bottom of the page. (MLA- use Easy bib-author, title, publication, date, URL) Include a recent picture of the author (text wrap and no bigger than 2”x2”; place in upper right hand corner).

RSR.1A Identify and describe components of the rhetorical situation: the exigence, audience, writer, purpose, context, and message.	NE 1 2 3 4

TASK 2 – Four Annotated Columns.

All columns should be dated no earlier than 2019, and each should be on a different topic. Copy and paste the columns into Microsoft word, change the font to Garamond 12 and double-space them to facilitate annotations. Be sure to include the Title, Author, Date and Publication at the top and organize them chronologically, oldest first. Your annotations should emphasize such things as:

- the central idea of the column
- identify appeals to logos, pathos, or ethos (by what means does the columnist seek to convince readers of the truth of his central idea?)
- the chief rhetorical and stylistic devices at work in the column (imagery, metaphor, hyperbole, etc.)
- the tone (or tones) of the column
- errors of logic or fallacies (if any) that appear in the column
- the type of sources the author uses and how they are used (Be sure to pay attention to this one!)
- the audience the author is writing for (who cares about the topic? is invested? can make change?)
- Add final comments (3-4 sentences) to each column that summarizes your personal response to the piece – do not summarize the column! (Please clearly mark them; you may choose to word process these, or you may hand write them legibly IN INK.)

RSR 1A Identify and describe components of the rhetorical situation: the exigence, audience, writer, purpose, context, and message.	NE 1 2 3 4

STR.7A Explain how word choice, comparisons, and syntax contribute to the specific tone or style of a text.	NE 1 2 3 4

TASK 3 – Précis for each column. More on this (and practice) in the coming days . . .

RSR. 1A Identify and describe components of the rhetorical situation: the exigence, audience, writer, purpose, context, and message.	Sentence 1	NE 1 2 3 4
STW.8A Strategically use words, comparisons, and syntax to convey a specific tone or style in an argument.		NE 1 2 3 4
CER.3A Identify and explain claims and evidence within an argument.	Sentence 2	NE 1 2 3 4
ROR 5B Explain how the organization of a text creates unity and coherence and reflects a line of reasoning.		NE 1 2 3 4
ROW 5C Recognize and explain the use of methods of development to accomplish a purpose.	Sentence 3	NE 1 2 3 4
RSR.1B Explain how an argument demonstrates understanding of an audience’s beliefs, values, or needs.	Sentence 4	NE 1 2 3 4

TASK 4 – In Depth Analysis of One Column and Two Extras.

Choose a favorite column from Task 2 and find two other treatments of the same topic: 1 straight news article and one opinion piece from an opposing view. Write a comparison of the three in which you look at credibility, evidence, position and persuasiveness. Write a thorough explanation of the differences and how they affect the message/ purpose; include a brief assessment or evaluation of the original column. Is it sound? Is it convincing? Is there bias? Do you agree with the author?

-BE SURE TO PRINT OUT AND INCLUDE THE FIRST PAGES OF YOUR TWO ADDITIONAL SOURCES

CER.3B Identify and describe the overarching thesis of an argument, and any indication it provides of the argument's structure.	NE 1 2 3 4
CER.3C Explain ways claims are qualified through modifiers, counterarguments, and alternative perspectives.	NE 1 2 3 4
STW.8A Strategically use words, comparisons, and syntax to convey a specific tone or style in an argument.	NE 1 2 3 4

TASK 5 – Final Remarks

Add a section entitled "Final Remarks." In this task, write a thorough personal reflection on what you learned going through this process, what value this project had in skills that transfer to other classes or other areas, what you think of the writer you chose and their ethos, with special focus on level of bias and their use of evidence, etc. (1st person is acceptable in this task.)

CEW 4A Develop a paragraph that includes a claim and evidence supporting the claim.	NE 1 2 3 4

Writing a Rhetorical Précis

A rhetorical précis analyzes both the content (the what) and the delivery (the how) of a unit of spoken or written discourse. It is a highly structured four-sentence paragraph blending summary and analysis. Each of the four sentences requires specific information; students are expected to use brief quotations (to convey a sense of the author's style and tone) and to include a terminal bibliographic reference. Practicing this sort of writing fosters precision in both reading and writing, forcing a writer to employ a variety of sentence structures and to develop a discerning eye for connotative shades of meaning.

TAKE A LOOK AT THE OVERALL FORMAT

1. Name of author, [optional: a phrase describing author], genre and title of work date in parentheses (additional publishing information in parentheses or note); a rhetorically accurate verb (such as “assert,” “argue,” “suggest,” “imply,” “claim,” etc.); and a THAT clause containing the major assertion (thesis statement) of the work.
2. An explanation of how the author develops and/or supports the thesis, usually in chronological order.
3. A statement of the author's apparent purpose followed by an “in order to” phrase.
4. A description of the intended audience and/or the relationship the author establishes with the audience.

NOW TAKE A CLOSER LOOK:

1. THE FIRST SENTENCE identifies the essay's author and title, provides the article's date in parenthesis, uses some form of the verb says (claims, asserts, suggests, argues—) followed by that, and the essay's thesis (paraphrased or quoted).

EXAMPLE: In "The Ugly Truth about Beauty" (1998), Dave Barry argues that "...women generally do not think of their looks in the same way that men do" (4).

EXAMPLE: In "The Ugly Truth about Beauty" (1998), Dave Barry satirizes the unnecessary ways that women obsess about their physical appearance.

2. THE SECOND SENTENCE conveys the author's support for the thesis (how the author develops the essay); the trick is to convey a good sense of the breadth of the author's support/examples, usually in chronological order.

EXAMPLE: Barry illuminates this discrepancy by juxtaposing men's perceptions of their looks ("average-looking") with women's ("not good enough"), by contrasting female role models (Barbie, Cindy Crawford) with male role models (He-Man, Buzz-Off), and by comparing men's interests (the Super Bowl, lawn care) with women's (manicures).

3. THE THIRD SENTENCE analyzes the author's purpose using an in order to statement:

EXAMPLE: He exaggerates and stereotypes these differences in order to prevent women from so eagerly accepting society's expectation of them; to this end, Barry claims that men who want women to "look like Cindy Crawford" are "idiots"(10), implying that women who adhere to the Crawford standard are fools as well.

4. THE FOURTH SENTENCE describes the essay's target audience and characterizes the author's relationship with that audience—or the essay's tone:

EXAMPLE: Barry ostensibly addresses men in this essay because he opens and closes the essay directly addressing men (as in "If you're a man...") and offering to give them advice in a mockingly conspiratorial fashion; however, by using humor to poke fun at both men and women's perceptions of themselves, Barry makes his essay palatable to women as well, hoping to convince them to stop obsessively "thinking they need to look like Barbie" (8).

Put it all together and it looks darn smart:

In "The Ugly Truth about Beauty" (1998), Dave Barry argues that ". . . women generally do not think of their looks in the same way that men do"(4). Barry illuminates this discrepancy by juxtaposing men's perceptions of their looks ("average-looking") with women's ("not good enough"), by contrasting female role models (Barbie, Cindy Crawford) with male role models (He-Man, Buzz-Off), and by comparing men's interests (the Super Bowl, lawn care) with women's (manicures). He exaggerates and stereotypes these differences in order to prevent women from so eagerly accepting society's expectation of them; in fact, Barry claims that men who want women to "look like Cindy Crawford" are "idiots" (10). Barry ostensibly addresses men in this essay because he opens and closes the essay directly addressing men (as in "If you're a man...") and offering to give them advice in a mockingly conspiratorial fashion; however, by using humor to poke fun at both men and women's perceptions of themselves, Barry makes his essay palatable to both genders and hopes to convince women to stop obsessively "thinking they need to look like Barbie" (8).
